Stopping by to say thank you. I have been down with a bug the last few days and it is nice to be back up and functioning again. This morning I had a wonderful time with around 60 seniors at a breakfast talking about how the mind works and it was fun and exciting to watch them smile and appreciate just what they have become over the years.

I bet that each one of you have also some wonderful stories and memories as well. I was thinking this morning that we spend so much time talking to each other about things that really don't matter that it might be nice to talk to our friends about things that do.

For instance do you remember that time you felt completely loved by someone? What was it that allowed you to feel that? Do you know what it was that your friends and family experienced that allowed them to experience it as well. Just thinking about it can change your state of mind to experience those feelings again.

Other memories to ask about might be the first time you felt like you could conquer the world? How about the first time you felt excited to do something? The first time you knew you were in love? How do you know you are right?

Take this and ponder this idea. At anytime you can change you or your friends emotional state just be asking one of these questions. What would you like to feel today and after you have that answer think of a time when you did and if you have never felt that way ask yourself what you would want it to feel like and create that.

You could if you wanted to change anyone's life with a simple question if you cared enough to ask.

RIPPLE EFFECT

"Keeping things conscious and following up their rather eclectic and experimental album Roots All Sorts, the MDV have just birthed a dynamic and vivacious live sound. Once again seasoned with that grounded MDV rootsy signature, the essence of this album speaks commandingly yet beneficently. The songs illustrate the bands live proficiencies - a steady resonance of authentic Roots Reggae, very often abandoned by the sounds of today.
Ripple Effect is an intelligent and fresh assemblage of brilliant tunes with n slice of instrumental experimentation. Enjoy!"
-AMF68

We always appreciate any feedback.
Give Thanks

You hold your answers. So many times people look for answers to who they are or what they want by searching outside. It is as if someone else knows them better than they do. Think about who you talk to the most. If you said someone else you might want to reconsider that answer. Through the years I have found that the person we talk to the most is ourselves. We are continually talking to ourselves to discuss feelings, decisions, and to change the meaning of what we are experiencing at the time. This process of inner talk is one of the key secrets to how we create our reality.

You already know the answer to your questions most of the time. The challenge is actually accepting it for what it is. In your perfect world how would you like to be this week, next week and the weeks to come? You are in charge of who you are today and the next so have some fun with it my friend.

Mystically yours,

Dr. Michael Holt, NC, CHI
